COLOMBIA RECALLS MINISTER OSPINA.

Action Due to Notification Regarding Knox's Visit.

Incident Between the Government and the United States Closed.

BOGOTA, Feb. 22.—General Pedro Nel Ospina, Colombian minister to the United States, was recalled by the Colombian government today.

The action was taken because neither the government nor the Colombian people upholds the position taken up by the minister at Washington in notifying the State Department that the visit of Secretary of State Knox to Colombia would be inopportune, owing to the fact that Colombia's claims in connection with Panama have not been arbitrated.

The notification given by the Colombian government today says that General Ospina is "separated" from his post at Washington and the incident between Colombia and the United States ist has closed. Colombia, it continues, will maintain her international policy.

DU BOIS NOT AFFECTED.

Recall of Ospina Voluntary on the Part of Colombian Government.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—The only concern of the State Department upon being informed through the Associated Press of the recall of the Colombian minister was that it should be thoroughly understood that the department had not directly or indirectly suggested this course, which consequently appears to have been purely voluntary on the part of the Colombian government.

The department has all along regarded Minister Ospina's utterances as purely personal, thereby accepting his own definition of his note and as he had been invited to express his opinion as to the expediency of Secretary Knox's visit, there would be no ground for complaint on the part of the department. But apparently it was quite another matter with the Colombian government. It is not expected that Minister Ospina's recall will in any was effect the status of Mr. Du Bois, the American minister to Colombia, who is said to have established very cordial and satisfactory relations with the Colombians.

DOUGLAS, Ariz., Feb. 22.—Federal and rebel troops clashed on La Gloria hill, 40 miles south of Douglas yesterday. Five federals and one rebel were killed and eight federals wounded. The federals were repulsed and retired to Yzabel, while the rebels retired toward Agua Prieta in the night. Mexican custom officials at Agua Prieta and most of the merchants there have moved all of their valuables to Douglas. Many American refugees from Nacosari and Gananoa have arrived here.

TAKE THE WIND OUT OF HIS SAILS.

House Adjourns Before Dr. Reid Can Call It Down.

Ineffectual Attempt to Recall Fifty-Four-Hour Bill.

[Special despatch to The News.]

PROVIDENCE, Feb. 22.—The senate and house met today in spite of the fact that it was Washington's birthday. The senate did nothing, adjourning immediately upon assembling. The house adjourned early, the Republican leaders taking the wind out of the sails of Dr. Reid, the Socialist member, by moving to adjourn when it became known that he was to call the house to account for meeting on the anniversary.

Mr. West of Providence tried to have the 54-hour bill taken from the committee on special legislation, but his motion failed, the Republicans with one exception voting against him. The judiciary committee reported back a number of bills, which were placed on the calendar or referred to other committees for further consideration.

The senate was called to order at 12.08. On motion of Senator Martin the reading of the records was dispensed with and adjournment was taken in respect to the Father of his Country.

In the house Mr. Bliss of East Providence, chairman of the judiciary committee, reported back an act authorizing North Providence to issue bonds. Placed on the calendar.

Mr. Pearce of Providence, for the financial committee, reported a resolution appropriating $7,500 for the use of the State House Commission. Placed on the calendar.

Mr. Fortin of Pawtucket, for the judiciary committee, reported substitute A for an act amending sections 10 and 11 of the General Laws, providing for holding caucuses in North Providence. Calendar.

Mr. Robinson of North Providence reported an act amending the law relating to the election of officers of the Jamestown Ferry Company.

Mr. Eaton of Providence, from the committee on accounts and claims, reported a resolution paying Charles E. Fanning $275 for his services as coroner in Warwick. Placed on the calendar.

Mr. Jennings, from the committee on judiciary, reported an act relating to corporations in general. Calendar.

Also, the 54-hour bill, the committee recommending that it be referred to the committee on labor legislation. So referred.

The judiciary committee also reported an act giving Christopher F. Paine the right to be placed on the retired list of the National Guard. Mr. Paine is a member of the Kentish Artillery. The bill, on recommendation of the judiciary committee, was referred to the militia committee.

Mr. Dion of Central Falls presented an act authorizing the state to appropriate $15,000 to be used in connection with the erection of a court house in Central Falls. The city of Central Falls is to erect a portion of the building, which is to be used as a police station. Referred to the judiciary committee.

Mr. Fortin of Pawtucket introduced several protests against the passage of the act allowing stores to be opened on Sundays. Referred to the judiciary committee.

Mr. West of Providence moved that the committee on special legislation be discharged from further consideration of the resolution abolishing the property qualification of voters and asked for a roll-call on his motion. The motion was lost by a vote of 60 to 27. Mr. Littlefield of New Shoreham, a Republican, who is opposed to the property qualification, voted with the Democrats in favor of Mr. West's motion. Mr. Eaton of Providence asked the privilege of explaining his vote, but Mr. West objected, and Mr. Eaton voted no. It is understood that he would have voted in favor of the motion if Mr. West had allowed him opportunity to explain his vote. Messrs Levy and Sullivan of Newport were not present when the vote was taken.

Dr. Reid, the Socialist member from Providence, had a resolution prepared, criticising the General Assembly for holding a session on Washington's birthday and moving to adjourn in respect to the memory of Washington, the members to receive no pay for the day's attendance. The Republican leaders in some way learned of Dr. Reid's intention and Mr. Jennings of Providence moved to adjourn, the house voting in favor of adjournment. Dr. Reid was on his feet to make his motion, but the Speaker recognized Mr. Jennings and the house adjourned without giving the Socialist member a chance.

BRONZE TABLET ACCEPTED.

"Victory Guarding the Records" at the State House Entrance.

(Special despatch to the News.)

PROVIDENCE, Feb. 22.—Before the legislature met this morning there was a patriotic celebration at the south entrance of the State House, where a large bronze tablet had been set up. It symbolizes "Victory Guarding the Records," and was presented to the state by the Soldiers and Sailors' Historical Society. General Elisha H. Rhodes of Providence presided at the presentation, the exercises being opened with prayer by Rev. Charles H. Ewer, chaplain of the state institutions and former department commander of the Grand Army of the Republic of Rhode Island. The tablet was then delivered to the society by the sculptor, William W. Manatt; General Rhodes presented it to the state and Governor Pothier accepted it in behalf of the state. Later an address was delivered by Lieutenant Ezra J. Parker, also a former department commander of the Grand Army.

A large crowd was in attendance and after the sessions of the General Assembly the veterans of Battery F, First Rhode Island light artillery, dined together in the State House restaurant.

TAFT DISAPPROVES, HITCHCOCK'S PLAN.

Not in Favor of Goverment Ownership of Telegraph.

Endorses Increase of Rate on Second Class Mattar.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—President Taft today informed Congress that he did not approve Postmaster General Hitchcock's suggestion that the government buy and operate all telegraph lines as an adjunct of the postal system. Mr. Taft said if it could be shown that the public would benefit by receiving service at a less price than is now paid he might think differently of the plan but he was not convinced that such would be the effect.

After referring to the practical wiping out of the postal deficit and other features of Mr. Hitchcock's administration of affairs, Mr. Taft in transmitting the Postoffice Department's report to Congress said:

"There is only one recommendation in which I cannot agree—that is one which recommends that the telegraph lines in the United States should be made a part of the postal system and operated in conjunction with the mail system. This presents a question of government ownership of public utilities which are now being conducted by private enterprise under franchises from the goverment.

"I believe that the true principle is that private enterprise should be permitted to carry on such public utilities under due regulation as to rates by proper authority rather than that the government should itself conduct them. This principle I favor because I do not think it in accordance with the best public policy thus greatly to increase the body of public servants.

"Of course, if it could be shown that telegraph service could be furnished to the public at a less price than it is now furnished to the public by telegraph companies, and with equal efficiency, the argument might be a strong one in favor of the adoption of the proposition. But I am not satisfied from any evidence that if these properties were taken over by the government they could be managed any more economically or any more efficiently or that this would enable the government to furnish service at any smaller rate than the public is now required to pay by private companies."

The President found much to commend in Mr. Hitchcock's department. "I cannot speak with too great emphasis," he said, "of the improvement in the Postoffice Department under the present management." He showed that there was a surplus of $219,118.12 at the end of the last fiscal year, compared with a deficit of $17,479,770.47 two years before. This was not to be accounted for, the President pointed out, by reductions of force or number of postoffices or salaries, but by scientific economy.

Mr. Taft approved the adoption of a parcels post recommended by Mr. Hitchcock, said the placing of assistant postmasters in the civil service should be followed by placing under the classified service also postmasters and commended the postal savings system. Preparations are being made, he said, to establish this system at about 40,000 fourth-class offices.

President Taft also approved and forwarded to Congress the report of the commission on second-class mail matter, recommending that the postal rate on magazines and newspapers be raised from one cent to two cents a pound. Postmaster General Hitchcock originally recommended a four-cent rate, but later changed this to two. The commission finds that the cost of handling second-class matter is about five and a half cents a pound. In approving the two-cent rate, however, President Taft declares that the business enterprises of the publishers of periodicals have been built up on the basis of the one-cent rate and therefore it would be manifestly unfair to put into immediate effect a larger increase in postage.

As to the effect of the proposed increase from one to two cents a pound President Taft quotes from the report of the postal commission the following paragraph: "Such an increase will not in the opinion of the commission, bring distress upon the publishers of newspapers and periodicals, or seriously interfere with the dissemination of useful news or information. A reasonable time should be allowed, after the rate is fixed, before it is put into effect. While the news rate will be very far from compensating the government for the carriage and handling of second-class matter, it will to some extent relieve the existing burden and result in a more equitable adjustment of rates."

That newspapers and magazines have been potent agencies for the dissemination of public intelligence and

POMONA GRANGE SESSIONS.

Practical Lecture by Professor Adams at Monthly Meeting of Newport County Members.

Newport County Pomona Grange held its monthly meeting at Fair hall in Portsmouth. The business session opened with the worthy master, Mrs. Helen A. Wilcox of Nonquit Grange, Tiverton, presiding. Reports from five of the six county Granges showed them to be in a flourishing condition. Nonquit Grange announced a minstrel show for next week, to be composed largely of female members; Aquidneck Grange is planning to initiate a class of 16 new members at its next meeting. Many matters relative to points under discussion in the national and state Granges were debated, several deputies and members of the last-named Granges being present.

State Steward Edmund Spooner, assisted by his wife, Mrs. Bertha M. Spooner, State Flora, installed Mrs. William M. Hughes as Lecturer, as she was absent at the annual installation.

Secretary Miss Clover L. Hambly of Tiverton, and Ceres, Mrs. E. A. Peckham of Middletown, were appointed a committee to prepare resolutions on the death of Mr. J. Overton Peckham of Middletown, who was a charter member of Pomona.

A recess was declared and the members adjourned to the dining room and partook of a basket lunch, Mrs. Warren R. Sherman assisted by Mrs. Walter Soule serving hot coffee.

The afternoon session opened with the singing of "Columbia the Gem of the Ocean." Professor George E. Adams of the department of agriculture at Kingston College, a past master of Kingston Grange, gave a practical address on the various "movements" which have been extending over the country during the past few years and which are awakening interest and extending a knowledge of agricultural subjects and experiments. Among these were the "Land Grant Act of 1862" establishing agricultural colleges; the federal experiment stations, established from 1880 to 1890; the founding of the Grange at Washington in 1867 by O. H. Kelley, and in 1873 the national Grange at St. Louis, followed in two years by the establishment of 2,000 subordinate Granges. The agricultural colleges then added an extension department whereby lecturers were sent out for a wider dissemination of knowledge concerning all matters of farm life. The "Back to Land" and "Country Life" movements have been growing in interest; "Vacant Lot Farming" or the Pingree potato movement, boys' corn clubs, herd testing associations, the annual farmers' week at the agricultural colleges, and the advocacy of the parcels post, have all served to arouse the country by showing the better conditions brought about by these "movements."

Professor Adams spoke of George Washington as a model farmer and planter on an extensive scale as having been the first to advocate stock and seed selections, and as the best writer of articles on agricultural subjects the country has ever known.

Considerable discussion followed upon the parcels post here and the packet post, which is in successful operation in Germany.

Following the lecture, Mrs. Hughes presented a patriotic program, restricted by the limited time. This included readings from the life, at home and abroad, of Washington; patriotic songs, a humorous collection of verses entitled "A Tale of the Little Hatchet," closing with the Grange song, "The Farmer is Chief of the Nation."

The hall had been extensively decorated by Mrs. Hughes with many small flags, bunting, shields with flags and eagles over each officer's desk and portraits of Lincoln and Washington against a red background.

Providence County Deputy Amos F. Maker, of North Swansea, master of Kickemuit Grange of Warren, was among the visiting guests.

FEW AUTOMOBILES IN CHINA.

[Country Life in America.]

In China, where gasoline costs 30 cents a gallon, the automobile is making progress slowly, but as modern ideas are rapidly becoming more prevalent, as indicated by the recent demands for a progressive government, this condition is likely to change. The chief difficulty is the narrowness of village streets and the small number of good country roads. In and about the large cities, however, the streets are often excellent.

At Tientsin there are 12 cars, three being owned by Chinamen. The streets of the foreign section are broad, level and excellently macadamized, while a splendid boulevard encircles the native city. Pekin also has a dozen cars which are used on her wide, well-kept streets.

Tsingtau has about 60 miles of splendid roads running along the ocean front and into the mountains near-by, affording one of the finest spots in the world for automobiling. In spite of this fact there are but six automobiles.

The roads in the vicinity of Nankin, China, are in exceptionally good condition for automobiling, and there are many pleasant drives. But there are only two automobiles owned by residents, these being the property of Chinese.

TAFT DISAPPROVES HITCHCOCK'S PLAN.

part in the development of the country," Mr. Taft says, all must admit. "But," he adds, "it is likewise true that the original purpose of Congress in providing for them a subvention by way of nominal postal charges in consideration of their value as mediums of public information ought not to prevent an increase, because they are now not only educational but highly profitable. There is no warrant for the great disparity between existing postage rates on periodicals and the cost of the service the government performs for them. The aggregate postal revenues for the fiscal year 1911 were $237,879,823.60, derived mainly from the postage collected on the four classes of mail matter. It is carefully estimated by the Postoffice Department that the revenue derived from mail matter of the first class is approximately one and one half times the cost of handling and carriage; that the returns from third and fourth-class matter are slightly in excess of their cost of handling and carriage; and that while second class matter embraces over 65 per cent of the entire weight of all the mail carried it nevertheless yields little more than five per cent of the postal revenues."

The postal commission on second-class matter was appointed by President Taft, following the controversy caused by the Postmaster General's original recommendations for the increase in rates. The matter was taken up by magazine publishers before committees of Congress and a sharp issue was raised as to the correctness of the Postoffice Department's figures. Congress finally passed a joint resolution authorizing the appointment of the commission, which was made up of Justice Charles E. Hughes of the Supreme Court, President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard University and Harry A. Wheeler, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

"The findings of the commission," says the President, "confirm the view that the cost of handling and transporting second-class mail matter is greatly in excess of the postage paid, and that an increase in the rate is not only justified by the facts but is desirable.

"The postal service is now, for the first time in years, operated upon a self-sustaining basis and in my judgment this is a wise policy; but it should not be carried out at the expense of certain classes of mail matter that pay revenue largely in excess of their cost. It is not just that some classes of mail should be exorbitantly taxed to meet a deficiency caused by other classes, the revenue from which is much below their cost of handling and carriage. Where such inequalities exist they should be removed as early as practicable.

"The proposed increase of one cent a pound in the second-class postage rate I believe to be most reasonable and if sufficient time is allowed before the change goes into effect it should work little serious injury to the business of the periodical publishers while equalizing at least in a measure the burdens of postal taxation."

Another suggestion of the commission which was given the President's approval would abolish the "cent-a-copy rate" for newspapers other than weeklies when mailed at a city letter carrier office for local delivery.

"SECRET SERVICE."

Well Known Play by William Gillette Novelized by Cyrus Townsend Brady.

Those who have seen William Gillette's play, "Secret Service," may now enjoy reading it as a novel, Cyrus Townsend Brady having put it into the form of a story. Dr. Brady has made as few changes as possible in the play, limited his discussion of the characters, their motives and actions to what was absolutely necessary to make the reader understand, and subordinated his own imagination to that of the playwright. He says he has had little share in this joint production, being determined to make the novel represent the play as faithfully as he could. That he has succeeded no one can deny. Perhaps, however, the reader would have been as well satisfied had he been less successful in his task, for the story reads more like a play than novel.

The tale is full of dramatic situations, one following quickly upon another until the climax is reached. The scenes are laid in Richmond one spring evening in 1865, just previous to the close of the Civil war, the events all taking place within three or four hours. It is a vivid picture of those days, when the South had reached the end of her material resources, although her spirit and courage were as indomitable as ever. The sacrifices and economies practiced by the women, who gave generously of their scanty store that their soldiers might be comfortable if possible in hospital or on the field, are made real in the opening chapters. The spirit of patriotism flames high in the hearts of the women characters: whether a girl of 16 or a broken-hearted mother, each gives her dearest.

The interest centres about a Yankee spy, who is suspected and plotted against by a rival in love. Captain Thorne has a difficult part to play, the dangers and perils of his lot increasing every moment. The heroine is a Southern girl, torn with conflicting emotions between her lover and her country. She tries to save both and the complications which ensue make the story.

There are several full-page illustrations by the Kinneys and the book is published by Dodd, Mead & Co.

A CENTURY OF PROGRESS.

The Man Who Sneers at Missions Today Cannot See Flow of Deeper Currents of His Age.

[Congregationalist.]

Striking as were the resemblances, the points of contrast between the Salem ordination and that of 100 years ago, when the pioneer American foreign missionaries were set apart to their task, were even more impressive. The identity in place and the exact correspondence in time, the following out on both occasions of our simple Congregational method of ordination, the presence of men descended from the famous historic five, all served to call to mind that day 100 years ago when a bare handful of churches gave their sanction to an enterprise, the success of which was yet far in the future, and concerning which many within the fold of the church itself felt grave doubts.

But the passing of 100 years brings wonderful changes. We have moved into an entirely different world of thought. The motives inspiring us to foreign missionary endeavor are not the precise motives that actuated the fathers. The young men ordained recently used language and held beliefs that might not have been understood or acceptable 100 years ago. Behold also how the world, touched by the wand of time, has changed. The doors of all nations are open to the gospel. The leaven is at work. Instead of stagnation and barbarism we face restlessness, and in some countries the semblance of civilization without its underlying basis.

Against the forces that make for the destruction of men and of nations, America puts into the field today, not five missionaries, but 6,000. Substantial financial resources, concentrated administrative ability, the knowledge of expert scholars and rapidly emerging statesmanlike plans for discipling all the nations, are behind the modern missionary movement. The outside world, instead of sneering derisively, as it did 100 years ago, when members of the Massachusetts legislature from this same Salem protested against giving a charter to the American board, is, if not wholly convinced concerning the worth of foreign missionaries, at least open minded and respectful. Kings, presidents and ambassadors voice their hearty aprpocal. The man who sneers or laughs today at missions cannot see the flow of the deeper currents of his age.

What next? Do no regions remain to be possessed? No indifference or apathy within the church or out of it to be overcome? No larger, wiser plans of evangelization to be devised? Nay, we are still in the earlier stages of the movement to Christianize mankind. We have much more to do in the way of giving, in the way of prayer and in the way of actual service. As the Salem ordination of 1812 was a challenge to the churches of America to rise to the demands of a great and daring faith, so the Salem ordination of 1912 summons churches in every following year to meet the new and tremendous opportunities of a new age with a faith, a purpose and a personal consecration worthy of the splendid pioneers.

MIDDLETOWN.

[Regular correspondence of the News.]

The Ladies' Aid of the Methodist Episcopal Church had planned a New England supper for Wednesday, to be followed by a Washington social in the church parlors. The supper tables were arranged with crepe paper napkins bearing a portrait of Washington with a border of cherries. Red, white and blue streamers were draped about the dining room, while in the large Sunday School room a huge American flag nearly covered the rolling screen which opens into the auditorium. The stair rail was wound in the national colors and an American flag was draped from the back over the piano. So few were present that with the constantly increasing storm it was decided to abandon the entire affair.

Early this morning there was considerable lightning, which caused a ringing of telephone bells; a torrent of rain and violent winds. No thunder was heard, however.

CHALONER LOSES HIS SUIT.

John Armstrong Chaloner of Virginia lost his suit in the United States district court in New York to have Thomas T. Sherman discharged as a committee of his person, and to have the estate of Chaloner placed in his own care. In his decision, finding for the defendant, Judge Holt declared that no illegality has been shown in the appointment of the committee of Chaloner's person, and that if Chaloner is sane his remedy lies in an appeal to the supreme court of New York to vacate its judgment declaring him insane.

PORTSMOUTH.

Women's Christian Temperance Union Holds a Frances Willard Memorial Meeting.

[Regular correspondence of The News.]

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union held a Frances Willard Memorial meeting at the home of the president, Mrs. Eunice A. Greene, about 60, including guests being present. An attractive program had been prepared and was well rendered, although a number who had parts were absent, some because of illness.

The meeting opened with the repetition of the Shepherd's Psalm in unison, followed by prayer by Rev. John Wadsworth of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Quotations taken from Miss Willard's writings were given by 28 members. A piano solo, "The Heart's Answer," was given by Miss Edna Malone, who gave in response to an encore "Hunting Song", and a recitation, "Miss Frances Willard", partly prose and partly poetry, Miss Alice Marshall. Mrs. Warren R. Sherman read a biographical sketch and Miss Etta R. Sherman from an article by Elizabeth T. Gordon, extolling Miss Willard's virtues. Mrs. Abram Rathbone's article was entitled "Charity Miss Willard's Highest Quality", by Bishop John H. Denson. A vocal solo, Mrs. Greene accompanying, "On Heights of Power," was given by Mrs. William H. Chace, Jr.; reading of "She loved much" by Mrs. George G. Brawley and "The Cause of Temperance," Mrs. Thomas J. Sweet. "Come and Help us," a long poem, was recited by Miss Eliza Hall.

Then came an instrumental duet—cornet, Roscoe Levins; violin, Raymond Ayler; accompanist, Mrs. Greene—"Flower Song," Blumenfied and for an encore "Rustic Dance" by C. R. Howell; recitation, Chafeeha Hague, "God made manifest"; anthem "Guide Me, O Thou Great Jehovah," by seven members of the chorus choir. Rev. James M. Estes gave a memorial address for Miss Willard, Rev. Mr. Wadsworth spoke enthusiastically of the result of Miss Willard's life work, Mrs. Lynch recited a poem with running piano accompaniment by Mrs. Greene and the closing number was a piano solo by Miss Malone. Crackers and cocoa were served.

The last meeting of the Grange Whist Club for the season was held at Fair Hall, with four tables. Mrs. Abner P. Anthony took the women's prize, a pepper and salt shaker, and Mr. D. Frank Hall the men's, a pocket match box.

Miss Maud Gifford of South Westport is guest of Rev. and Mrs. James M. Estes.

Invitations in golden letters have been issued to attend the golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Anthony at the town hall Tuesday, March 5.

HOW TO BE A WEATHER SHARP.

The following formula of weather signs was adopted by the Farmers' Club of the American Institute some years ago, and it has been found to give satisfaction:

1—When the temperature falls suddenly there is a storm forming south of you.

2—When the temperature rises suddenly there is a storm forming north of you.

3—The wind always blows from a region of fair weather toward a point where a storm is forming.

4—Cirrus clouds always move from a region where a storm is in progress to one of fair weather.

5—Cumulus clouds always come from a region were a storm is forming.

6—When cirrus clouds are moving rapidly from north or northeast, no matter how cold it is, there will be rain within 24 hours.

7—When cirrus clouds are moving rapidly from south or southeast there will be a hailstorm on the morrow, if it be in the summer, and if it be in the winter there will be snow.

8—The wind always blows about a storm in a circle: when it blows from the north, the heaviest rain is east of you; if it blows from the south, the heaviest rain is west of you; if it blows from the east, the heaviest rain is south.

9—The wind never blows, even moderately, unless rain or snow is falling within a radius of 1,000 miles.

10—Whenever heavy white frost occurs a storm is forming within 1,000 miles north or northwest of you.

INCREASE OF WILD GAME.

Great Abundance of all Kinds of Birds And Animals Found in Pennsylvania.

[Harrisburg correspondence, Philadelphia Inquirer.]

Based upon reports received from all parts of Pennsylvania to the state game commission and personal observations of the commissioners, the statement it officially made in the annual report of the commission that there is a greater abundance of all kinds of wild game and birds in that state today than for a long time. The same is true of song and insectivorous birds, which are protected by law because of their great economic value as devourers of crop-destroying insects. Says the report:

The increase of game birds is evident in many sections of the commonwealth, quail being more plentiful in western Pennsylvania than for many years; this being in evidence in most of the counties, excepting the northern tier, and a limited number of counties in the southwestern part of the state, where because of close cultivation it is impossible for these birds to exist at all. More ruffled grouse have been seen during the past summer and fall, and more have been killed in the state during the open season just past than has been the case for five or more years. The reports of wild turkeys have been exceedingly flattering, and we believe there are more wild turkeys in the state today than there has been for many years.

There is no doubt whatever about the very decided increase of deer and bear. More deer have been seen in the state than for 25 or more years, and while perhaps no more deer were killed, because of the law prohibiting the killing of any deer excepting a male deer with horns visible above the hair, this same provision has saved the lives of many does and small deer that otherwise would have been slaughtered. While we are not, at this time, in position to definitely state the number of men killed an dwounded in mistake for deer in the United States during the hunting season just passed, we take pleasure in saying that not one single instance of this kind has come to our notice. We know there have been several men killed in this state an da number wounded during our open season this year, some accidentally and some in mistake for turkeys, but not one in mistake for deer; this condition speaks for itself, and the increase of deer or the success of hunters is only incidental.

Notwithstanding the reported increase of bear there seem to have been fewer killed than for several years, this we believe is due to the elimination of the steel trap in taking beer, and not to a reduced number of bear in the woods. The bear by nature being timid and sly, and a night-prowler, is not so easily taken as some might suppose. Rabbits seem to have been plentiful all over the state, and large numbers were taken in various ways.

Taken altogether, the hunting season just passed appears to us to have been a successful one from the standpoint of game captured.

The state game commissioner views with alarm the growing use of high-powered rifles in the neighborhood of towns and thickly settled rural sections and near public roads, owing to the danger to human life. In view of the fact that not more than three per cent of the people ever engage in hunting, the commission warns hunters that the remainder of the population is entitled to protection from the reckless individual with the high-powered rifle. The new game law, making a uniform open season, is approved by the commission.

Secretary Joseph Kalbfus in his report to the commission, applauds the growing tendency to educate old and young along the line of protecting bird life. He refers especially to the instruction being given in the public schools and to the interest taken by the Boy Scouts and other organizations of young people. The result is already appreciable.

On the other hand, the secretary reports that a reduction of the state appropriation for bounties for the destruction of noxious animals results in an increase of these pests, which prey on useful animal and bird life. He criticises the "unreasonable opposition" of members of the legislature to the "resident hunters' bill," which would have created a fund out of hunters' licenses with which the extermination of these pests could have been carried on.

Secretary Kalbfus attributes the marked increase of deer to the "buck deer law," under which it is unlawful to kill any deer that does not have horns. Rabbits, he finds, are becoming so plentiful in places as to constitute a positive menace to growing crops.

ROCKEFELLER ON MATRIMONY.

Eleven hundred dollars a year is the smallest income in which a New York man should venture into matrimony, according to the verdict of the Rockefeller Bible Class. This is the conclusion reached as the result of the class winter course of study in "What Young Men Ought to Know About Engagement and Matrimony." John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has been present at all the sessions thus far and has taken an active part in the discussions.

The monthly expenses attending marriage for a young couple of the middle class, according to the class program, is $102.50. Rent averages $28 a month; food, $28; clothes, $18; gas, electricity and washing, $6;; medicine, $4; car fare, $9; $2 for amusements and church, and for summer expenses $5 a month. A young man should marry as early as possible, the class thinks—preferably in the early twenties.

Mr. Rockefeller caused laughter when he said that the best way to obtain an idea of a girl's disposition was to look at her mother. It also is important for a man to see his sweetheart before breakfast, he said.

WASHINGTON.

[Rev. Joseph Cooper.]

Thine eye was single, thine heart was true,
To one great purpose born within thy soul;
To weld thy people into one great whole
And breathe a nation into forms anew.

Taught by the stress and strain of fateful years
To study men and human ways as well;
Out from the tide of rich experience tell
The way to walk amid encircing fears.

An anchorage wert thou when seas ran high,
A shelter from the fury of the gale
When mighty billows split the seaman's sail
And threaten to engulf them far and nigh.

Sublimest patriot! Lover of thy native land!
For her thou yieldest all that life holds dear,
For her thou wieldest well the warlike spear
Or guidst the plough with strong and steady hand.

Thou wert a beacon light that all could see
When men were fainting fast on every side.
Thy faith no darkness then could hide
In God and the glorious country yet to be.

O Washington, thou wert the brightest star
Of all that splendid galaxy of souls
Round which the fateful future rolls,
The young republic seen the world afar.

Now may thy spirit dwell within our hearts,
To cheer us in the tasks that we must do;
May we be loyal to the best and true,
As thou wert true in all thy varied parts.

Then shall this land forever hold thee dear,
When bravely fronting foes but dimly seen;
Upon thine arm our weakness we will lean,
Thy words forever bringing wholesome cheer.

FANCIES.

George Washington, George Washington,
Your fame is still our boast;
The things that you have said and done
We truly love the most.
And yet we're in an envious state,
Which leaves us somewhat sad,
Whene'er we think about the great
Advantages you had.

You never made a polar dash;
You never had to wait
On tariff regulators rash,
Who urged you to debate.
No doubt your manhood, like your youth,
Was marvelously good.
You never fibbed. There was, in sooth,
No reason why yiu should.

THE NEWS IN PROVIDENCE.

A BRANCH EMPLOYMENT BUREAU.

The free employment bureau established by the state and located in Providence has proved so useful that a demand has arisen for another in the northern part of the state and a resolution has been introduced in the legislature for a branch at Woonsocket. The passage of the measure is urged by organizations in the vicinity of that city, which declare that the journey to Providence is too long for those from the north part of the state who desire to avail themselves of the advantages of the bureau. It is evident from this appeal for a branch near at hand that the initial office of this kind is doing an important work and is appreciated by those for whose benefit it was established. It was argued by its advocates that it would fill a real want on the part of the laboring classes and greatly benefit those not in a position to avail themselves of the services of a bureau of employment for which they must pay, but it was opposed by some on the ground that it would be a waste of money by the state and would not be appreciated or used to any considerable extent by the working people.

The reports from the bureau from time to time have indicated that its advocates and not its opponents were correct in their estimate of the need of such an institution and the value it would prove to the working classes, and this request from another section for a branch furnishes ample proof that the state is doing a good work through this department. There is no reason why the request should not be granted, for it is plain that if many working people in Woonsocket and vicinity desire to use the bureau it is a distinct disadvantage to be obliged to go to Providence to do so and that many would be greatly convenienced by having a branch in the immediate vicinity. If the measure is not adopted it will not be because it is not a worthy one.

PUBLIC TRADE SCHOOLS.

One strong argument advanced in favor of public trade schools is that such schools to a large extent at the present time are confined to reformatories and consequently the peculiar condition exists that in many places a boy in order to secure training in a trade at the expense of the state must commit a crime. This is a forceful way of putting the situation, and yet it is evident that it is fair and discloses the facts. In the light of these circumstances it needs no special argument to show that it is the duty of the state to establish trade schools for those who are not criminals or offenders against the laws in any form in order that the boys who are law-abiding and of good habits should have at least as much advantage in respect to education in the trades as those who have shown proclivities toward crime and been put under restraint. The present system is making the learning of a trade at the expense of the state a sort of punishment, while it ought to be made a special privilege which all boys can receive and not alone those who have committed some offence which merits penalty.

Happily the plan of the establishment of trade schools by states is spreading. That there are none in this state is not because there has been no request, but because the law makers have not yet seen fit to provide one. Certain of the industrial establishments of Providence are doing something in a small way in aiding the pupils of the schools to learn a little about those particular trades, by allowing pupils selected by the teachers to use their plants at fixed times for instruction and training. This is only a small part of what is needed, though it is desirable and useful so far as it goes. What is needed is regular trade schools as a part of the system of public education, provided at the expense of the state and open to all who desire to avail themselves of the facilities afforded. It is to be hoped that the legislators will soon see the wisdom of giving all boys the same opportunity to secure a trade education at the expense of the state now afforded those who are in reformatories.

MAKING HOME HAPPY FOR THE HIRED GIRL.

A few years ago a Kansas clergyman explained how to solve the domestic problem. It was admitted that kitchen help was scarce because domestic service was unpopular and he proposed to increase its attractions by giving the hired girl the guest room, having her sit at the table with the family and receive her company in the parlor, being in every sense of the word a member of the family. It was currently reported that his wife disapproved his notions and preferred to have the maid wait on her at the table and eat afterwards. The reform never became general, whatever may have been its fate in the household whose least important member invented it.

Now another clergyman has told how to solve the domestic problem. It is strictly professional for the clergy to reform things, although domestic service would seem to lie a little outside of their jurisdiction. This latest reformer is a Unitarian minister in Watertown, who would make home happy for the hired girl by giving her the use of the automobile, the piano and the library, and providing her with theatre tickets. It happens, however, that there are many families which cannot afford automobiles for themselves, a few which have no piano, and many which feel obliged to limit themselves closely in the matter of theatre tickets. Must they buy automobiles, pianos and theatre tickets for the benefit of the lady in the kitchen?

Rev. Mr. Mills says families "do not realize the circumscribed lives of those whom they employ," but we should like to know if he realizes how little circumscribed the lives of domestic servants are? Take a girl who is free from the time lunch is cleared away on Thursday till Friday morning, and every alternate Sunday from after luncheon till Monday morning, and who is out five or six evenings in the week from the time the dinner dishes are washed till midnight, and her close confinement to her duties and the lonesomeness of her kitchen do not appeal very strongly. Her life does not seem to be unduly circumscribed.

THE OREGON CASE IN COURT.

The Supreme Court rather neatly side-stepped the case which came from Oregon involving the constitutionality of the initiative and referendum. The question raised was whether these measures did not substitute pure democracy for the republican form of government guaranteed by the constitution, and the court decided that it was a political question over which it had no jurisdiction and which was left in the hands of Congress.

However, Congress has no authority to override a state law. Such a statute is good until the courts declare it to be in conflict with the constitution of the state or of the Union. Congress could refuse to seat Representatives and Senators from Oregon if it were without a republican form of government, but what else could it do even if Oregon set up a king? Perhaps it could send an army thither to put down a monarchical form of government.

There is no doubt that the constitutional provision in regard to a republican form of government was simply aimed at the prevention of a monarchy. The authors of the constitution did not have in their minds the distinction between a pure democracy and republicanism, though they were familiar with it and discussed it. They were aiming to keep out the monarchical principle.

If the initiative and referendum had been substituted in Oregon for the legislature there would be room to raise this question of pure democracy, although that probably has no place in the meaning of the constitution. It happens that the legislature acts a hundred times where the people act directly once, so that there is no difference in principle between the Oregon practice and that of submitting to the people of a state the question of a loan or to the people of a city the question of buying the gas works, or taking land for a park, and these exercises of power directly by the people are provided for in nearly all the recent state constitutions.

Colonel Roosevelt did not announce his intentions regarding the Presidential nomination in his Ohio speech. He did, however, give a declaration of principles which he favors, but he can hardly expect to obtain the nomination in a Republican convention on these. If he is to enter the race he would better seek endorsement from the Democrats, who more nearly follow the ex-President in his views. Colonel Roosevelt was asked flatly whether he is a candidate for the Presidency and replied, "My hat is in the ring," a sporting term whose intent is well known to the fraternity, but which was evidently used to cover a direct answer. This, he says, he will give next Monday.

A movement is on foot in Washington to bring about action by Congress which will result in the abolition of the fee for admission to Mt. Vernon. The home of Washington was purchased some time ago by popular subscription and the association of women which maintains the memorial has a fund on hand beyond what is needed for this purpose. It is suggested that it is no more than right that the people of the world should be permitted to visit the shrine without restriction and without price. Congress gave the charter to the memorial association and can compel the abolition of the fee.

President Taft's nominee for the United States Supreme Court, Chancellor Mahlon Pitney of New Jersey, was once a base ball player, and a good one, too, if the opinion of one who knew is worth anything. This man says: "They spoiled a Big League base ball player in making Pitney a lawyer, but he's making good at the law as he would have in base ball."

The movement for a $2,500,000 Washington memorial building in the city of Washington is progressing, $500,000 having already been pledged to the fund. The association which has charge of the project is satisfied with the success of its efforts expects 1912 to be a banner year for the movement.

Governor Dix of New York is in trouble over his appointments. He refuses to name Tammany men and the Tammany senators decline to confirm his nominees. What would Governor Dix have been except for Tammany's support?

This is a blizzard in the West. We ought to be thankful for what we escape.

Few people are stirring today, except those who are stirred by the wind.

A January thaw and a March blow combined in a February storm.

Washington certainly had a big blow-out today.

THE CHINESE ATTITUDE.

[William Elliot Griffis.]

There are, roughly speaking, no Chinese in our country, except Canton Chinamen from the two Kwang provinces; nor, except occasionally at the legation in Washington, or sporadically elsewhere in the United States, or since the coming of the "indemnity students" recently, any northern, western, central or eastern Chinese. After 40 years' study of the subject I never heard of any but the Kwang, or southern Chinamen, ever coming to our country, or greatly wanting to come. Those who try to get over our frontiers are southern Chinese, who have relatives already here. I have never seen any signs of a "Mongolian invasion."

Almost to a man the southern Chinese have always been opposed to the Manchu dynasty, and have furnished nearly all the great uprisings against the Manchus. Hence, the unanimity and quiet in America of "the Chinese."

Again, to talk of "monarchical custom, which was contemporary with the Pharaohs," is traditional and in accord with a popular view, but is not according to scholarship or critical history. The Chinese passed through savagery, barbarism and feudalism, and there were no historic kings or emperors when history opens—800 to 1,000 B. C., when all the classic records reveal the feudal system, not monarchy. In later times only were the patriarchs and "gods" called "emperors" or "kings." Monarchy—after the abolition of the feudal system and centralization of power, which, as well as the expression of Chinese unity, is symbolized by the Great Wall—began only in the third century before Christ. Furthermore, there have since, in the various dynasties, been tremendous variations in centralization and local liberty. Whatever the form, or wherever the capital, China has always been in her common social system that merits down Tartars, Mongols, Manchus into uniformity, a disguised republic.

In a word, after an adult lifetime of study of the peoples of the Far East, I find few or no novelties in their history or evolution as compared with that of our own rise from savagery to civilization; nor is their human nature by a hair's breadth different from our own. What we need now to have cast in the world's melting pot is the colossal conceit common to the white and the yellow man with more scientific comparative history.

THE FAMINE IN SEEDS.

[Boston Evening Telegraph.]

Many people will be surprised this spring when they receive their seed catalogues, to note the high prices they must pay for garden or flower seeds. For there is a veritable seed famine. At no time since the Civil war have prices been so high. Peas, for instance, which usually bring $3 a bushel, in England are now quoted at $15. Carrot seed which usually sells for 25 cents a quart, now sells at $2 in England. Of beet seeds there was no crop last year. Grass seed sells at three times the usual price. And so it is through the whole list. In fact the scarcity of seeds has been such that many growers are selling their seed stock rather than plant and run the risk of crop failure.

High prices of seed however cannot be charged up to any combination of dealers. The shortage of crops has been due to a succession of floods and droughts in the last six or seven years. And even where seed raisers have been fortunate enough to escape these, there has been for some unaccountable reason a failure in the crop. The gardener who grows peas expects to get many times the number of peas he plants; the seed grower who sows seed broadcast expects to get some seven times his sowing. Yet last year the seed grower as a rule got only three times his crop, and many of the growers of beet seed did not even get their seed back.

This is one of the cases where the consumer can do nothing about it. He cannot seek relief in the courts or appeal to the legislature. Nature makes her own laws and can amend them at her pleasure. To the suburban dweller who buys his seed at 10 cents a packet the burden will not be heavy; he will simply pay the same price for fewer seeds. To the large grower the difference in price means something, but all he can do under present conditions is to grin and bear it.

DON'TS FOR THE MEN.

Never refer to your evening coat as a swallowtail or dress coat. Today it is known and known only as the tail coat.

Be sure to remember that the plain black cloth waistcoat for evening wear is an unknown quantity and, by the way, "vest" is a word that is no longer in the smartly dressed man's vocabulary. It is an obsolete term.

Don't speak of the coat for informal evening occasions as the Tuxedo. If you do you brand yourself as well as your clothes as hopelessly out of date. The Tuxedo is now referred to as the dinner jacket.

Of course you would never commit the error of wearing a black waistcoat and a turndown collar with the tail coat.

Neither are you apt to be so hopelessly ignorant of things fashionable as to wear a white tie, and a shaped one at that, with your dinner jacket.

AROUND RHODE ISLAND.

Several New Industries Looking for Locations in Providence.

Rhode Island Company's Alternative Propositions for East Side Approach Franchise.

Providence is the objective point for the location of several new industries, according to Edward J. W. Proffitt, chairman of the committee on new industries of the Board of Trade. He reports numerous receipts of inquiries from manufacturers who desire to establish large plants in the city. Included among these is one from a large concern whose pay roll would be about $25,000 a year. It is claimed. "A certain large electrical concern now located in New York city is seeking a location in which to manufacture electrical supplies of various kinds," Mr. Proffitt said. "There is another concern desirous of obtaining a location in which to manufacture cotton waste. It requires about 30,000 feet of floor space, 200 horse power of water for power a minimum of 500,000 gallons of water 24 hours per day. It would prefer a paper mill property with machinery. Its pay roll will be about $25,000 per year. Another concern is seeking a location for a bleachery where it will require a supply of about a million gallons of water per day, free from contamination. A concern manufacturing celluloid phonograph records is also seeking a factory to rent and desires about 4,000 square feet, with gas or electricity."

The Rhode Island Company will pay a flat sum of $750,000 or an annual rental of $30,000 for the exclusive right to lay and maintain rails upon an easy-grade street to the east side, if the city of Providence will build such a street. This proposition is contained in a letter from Vice President D. F. Sherman of the company sent to the city council commission on east side approach. The offer is made in explaining the company's position on safer and more rapid railway transit to the east side. While the company expresses its willingness to construct a tunnel if the city so desires, it makes plain its position that both the city and the company would be better off if an easy-grade street was decided upon. The company makes two propositions, one with regard to the construction of a tunnel and the other for an easy-grade street. Both are submitted with the understanding that they shall remain open for a reasonable length of time and that the company shall have an exclusive franchise for 20 years.

An act introduced in the house for the purpose of regulating the practice of osteopathy and creating a board of registration, if it becomes a law will, it is claimed, insure to Rhode Island as high a class of practice in osteopathy as any of the 41 states in which this branch of medicine is now legalized. The requirements are as strict as the provisions now governing admissions to practice in the other schools of medicine. Under the act as presented, the applicant must have an education equivalent to a four-year high school course and must be a graduate of a college of osteopathy requiring an attendance of four years of not less than eight months each. In addition, he must pass an examination in the subjects of anatomy, physiology, physiological chemistry, toxicology, pathology, bacteriology, diagnosis, hygiene, obstetrics, gynecology, and the principles and practice of osteopathy. It provides that even practitioners who are already practicing in the state shall not be admitted unless they are graduates of an osteopathic college requiring an attendance of not less than two years of 10 months each. The act also provides against practice in cases of certain contagious and infectious diseases, and provides that all persons licensed under this act shall affix to their titles designations showing that they are practitioners of osteopathy. The act provides for the election of an examining board of five members to be appointed in the customary manner, allows them only such compensation as results from fees for examinations, which fees are fixed by statute, and requires an annual report for them.

William M. Peckham, overseer of the poor of Pawtucket for a quarter of a century, died Tuesday at his home in that city. His death was rather sudden for he had been ill but a few days, but had not been in very good health for some time before that. Mr. Peckham, in spite of his illness, continued to attend to his duties up to last Saturday, when he was forced to give up and was confined to his home. Death was indirectly due to a bullet wound he received in the knee in a battle at Yellow Bale, La., May 18, 1864. He was a member of the Third Massachusetts regiment at the time, serving with that command throughout the war. Mr. Peckham was born in Petersham, Mass., February 2, 1846. He was a member of Tower Post, Grand Army of the Republic, having risen to the rank of past commander; Enterprise Lodge, I. O. O. F., being a past grand in that Order; Veteran Odd Fellows, United Workmen, New England Workmen, and the Pawtucket Business Men's Association.

Rev. Eben Creighton, a member of the Brown University class of 1857 and formerly identified with several Rhode Island parishes, died Wednesday in Boston after an extended illness. Besides studying at Brown University, Mr. Creighton also pursued theological studies at the Crozer Theological Seminary and at Harvard University. While at Brown he supplied the pulpit of the Fourth Baptist Church for several months and was also active in home missionary fields in connection with the North Baptist Chapel and in Manton. Always interested in missionary work, he decided to go to Africa. On his own resources, he went to Cape Town and engaged in work among the natives for a radius of 1600 miles from his headquarters. Afterwards he went up the east coast and travelled across Africa from the Congo region, visiting various missionary posts and giving aid at various points. Rev. Mr. Creighton returned to this country about five years ago. He was a victim of African fever while in the dark continent, and never fully recovered from the effects of that illness. Of late years he had engaged in evangelistic work.

Rhode Island is to have a prominent part in the fifteenth International Congress of Hygiene and Demography to be held in Washington, September 23-28. Colonel William C. Gorgas, chief sanitary officer of the Isthmian Canal Commission, has invited John Swarts of Providence to go to Panama and assist in preparing the commission's exhibit on hygiene and sanitation, which will be a part of the exhibition on health in connection with the coming international congress. Mr. Swarts is the son of Dr. Gardner T. Swarts, whom Governor A. J. Pothier recently appointed on a committee of five to arrange a health exhibit at the congress to represent the state of Rhode Island.

Postmaster Newell of Woonsocket has recived a telegraph from the First Assistant Postmaster General, giving permission for the removal of the Woonsocket postoffice equipment from the Buckland building, where the postal force has worked for several years, to the new postoffice building on Main street. Mr. Newell expects to move into the new quarters within the next fortnight or so, and early in March the business of the office will be in full swing there.

CHINAMEN IN CUBA.

[Havana Post.]

John Chinaman is ubiquitous in Havana. The census of 1889 shows a Chinese population of 2,751, and here, as elsewhere, they are industrious members of the community. Chinamen are seen carrying burdens swung from balanced shoulder poles, after the manner of their native country. On the outskirts of the city, and in the suburbs, are extensive Chinese truck farms and the market garden industry is largely in their hands.

The Chinese quarter is in Zanja and Aguila streets. The Chinese theatre is in Zanja street. The Chinese in Cuba are reminders of the coolie trade which brought there hundreds of thousands to virtual slavery. They were imported under a contract to serve eight years at $4 a month, and the planters paid $400 for them.

WING NINETY MILES AN HOUR.

rst Gale Which Newport Has Experienced for Years.

ny Craft in Trouble in the Harbor But Damage Comparatively Small.

There is something of a storm on, gh it may not be necessary to say s to those who were out, for they ght to know it. Captain Gustaf Sod- n of Fort Adams launch Captain man says it is the hardest blow he s experienced in 20 years boating in e bay, and C. B. Anderson down at e wharf says it is the toughest n blow has had since he first knew e town. This seems to be the general opinion. Every one seems to think the st one is blowing just a trifle stiffer n they remember it. Captain Soderman says the nearest he remembers this was 19 years ago, when sloop Peri went ashore at Gravelly far as Newport was concerned, storm began Wednesday afternoon rain and some wind. The rain n in shape about 6 o'clock evening and by 10 the wind s blowing a stiff gale from the theast. It seemed a gale then, but y what might be called a fresh eze compared with what has been rienced today.

The wind shifted to southwest during the morning hours and it began w off. It had been 48 about 11 nesday night; it was 28 at noon today. The rain which beat hard against all who were out, totalled 1.09 ches at the Water Works gauge. It d seem as though as much as came down in a few moments nesday night, and the wind drove At times the wind howling through the trees and buildings imitated the driving of rain long after the had stopped.

There were several snow flurries today but all were much abbreviated d were varied by sunlight, which, however, did not add much to the th outdoors. The wind drove so at times and in places it seemed possible to advance against it. n Block Island 72 miles an hour is reported and a barkentine is reported ashore on Sandy Point. New k reports 96 miles an hour and s seems nearer the mark around e judging by the way it feels.

Captain Kenyon, at the Brenton's t life saving station, reported this n that the wind was blowing 90 les an hour, the seas were running e worst they have been seen in ny a day, and aided by an unusually high tide, things were being shed all along the shore, though up that time he had heard of no particular damage.

Surfman Campbell was hurled down the wind and had a narrow escape m a fractured leg. He stepped out the station and rounded a corner the lea of the structure, when a t of wind literally picked him up d threw him back. He was bruised his knee is pretty sore, but is being treated from the medical kit at station.

The power life-boat Ida Lewis is doing high tumbling in the waters er moorings and there is a decided question if it would be possible man her and put out in case of d.

From the station it is reported t there were a large number of ws of barges putting to sea Wednesday morning and this morning tow was made out, seeking the ter of the bay. The high wind is ng the air with spray and it is cult for the men on watch to see a short distance from land.

Early this afternoon Captain Kenyon reported that the lookout descried hat seemed to be a large schooner t anchor to the southward of the lightship. She is a five-master and is t flying distress signals. So far s the life savers are able to observe her anchors are holding well d she is riding out the storm safety. However, she is too far away to receive succor from shore eeded, and all the life savers can s to watch for distress signals and they are shown ask for some steam craft to go to her assistance. Since d warning was given of the approach of the storm it is hoped at the station that little shipping has been caught in the blow where safety will be endangered.

Things were pretty well prepared for the blow so far as craft afloat were concerned, but there were some ses. The engineer office launch Engineer sank at her float at Sullivan's k. The float of Tunning's launches s carried away and the house th its contents was smashed against the sea wall at the east end of the t. The launches, however, escaped ury. The Cora, at the end of the k had her starboard rail smashed t the forward rigging. The Aloha d extra lines out. The Gazelle, the gineer office schooner smashed her wsprit at Commercial wharf. Below there seemed to be no damage, but the s were very heavy and at the angle f Ferry Mill wharf it was extremely gh.

Ferryboat Beaver Tail from Jamestown made her 8:20 trip to this city d has since been tied up. The heavy s threw her bow over the bridge, e hoisting shaft was broken, the dge fell and the boat was tied up t await better weather.

Torpedo Station ferryboat Wave trips the lines made none, d the Captain Drum is still tied up the Government Landing. In other ds travel by water is at a standstill.

barge P. C. C. 9 of the Scully toward the Newport the Fisheries dock like a smash-up, but sloop Dauntless, she before she struck the the Newport Yacht sunken wharf appearing some protection. In the a light barge drifted the Breakwater light and efforts tug to pull her off were It looked as though she work clear herself.

New York steamer Puritan from New York at 12:15 it was foggy with some she left New York and as she came along. Before the Race a wireless from bound out from here. Puritan not to attempt and she went back to and anchored. Starting anchor, the hoisting apparatus and it took four hours anchor on deck. Then she port.

The was in waiting and as passengers were on it pulling out about Puritan left at 1 for Fall freight. As she from the dock her starboard touched the water, she careen under the heavy arrived at New York morning.

General is making her trips as usual, she hugged the Jamestown shore on the 1 o'clock trip and was bothered in landing by the Puritan, but reached the dock by 1:12. The New Shoreham did not venture past Long wharf toward Block Island. The City of Newport did not attempt the trip to Providence.

Steamer Sagamore on the Bristol Ferry route did not attempt to make any trips. There were terrific seas up the bay and the slip on this side was so exposed that landing would be next to impossible.

Fears were expressed for the safety of property at Island Park when the tide should be high, but before this took place the wind had veered more to the west and the full force of the blow was not straight up the East river, to send the seas on the frail underpinning of the houses along shore there.

The three rowboat floats at the Newport Yacht Club were torn from their moorings and thrown up into the northeast corner of the harbor and wrecked. Ten of the 36 skiffs which were on them were wrecked in the catch all. Captain Soderman's Rahnee and Jack Sullivan's Alice rolled sorely at their moorings and finally locked masts. A wrecking party went to work on them and finally secured them, rather battered and worn by their treatment. John S. Coggeshall's launch filled and sank. The city's float at Long wharf was torn away from its moorings and went with the rest of the wreckage. C. F. Wetherell's Viator carried away her bowsprit.

Tug Chickasaw, with a working party, chains, etc., came from the Torpedo Station just after noon and landed at Long wharf. The men went to the Government Landing to secure a float which had broken loose in the heavy sea. The Chickasaw was caught under the Puritan's guard for about a minute and her stern shows the effects.

The powerful tug C. F. Dunbar, of the dredging fleet, stood by some of the mud scows off the Government Landing and prevented them from drifting.

At a point just opposite the Daily News building at the foot of Cotton's court, Officer Coggeshall found that he had plenty to do in assisting children and women caught in the hurricane which raked this exposed district. In one instance his services were especially timely. A little one-legged boy was caught in the sweep of the wind and the pace was faster than he was able to manipulate his crutches. Had not the officer caught the boy in his arms the little fellow would have been thrown headlong on the sidewalk. Little children were in actual danger of being dashed against the buildings when they crossed the Government Landing section.

People who visited the beaches, and there were quite a few who went both to Easton's and Bailey's say the sight was grand and well worth while. They admit that it took some courage to weather the wind blowing across the beaches. The news of the marine spectacle spread rapidly and during the day a number of people went to the beaches and the Cliffs with cameras, although it was perilous to venture on the Cliffs.

The flatiron corner has been working as it never did before. Strong men have been halted when they were struck by one of the terrible gusts which came up from the Government Landing. Many people were wise and used Spring street in preference to taking the usual route, while a quartet of show girls who had just struck town had a vigorous introduction to the possibilities of the place. They plunged and lunged, gybed and tacked, sought every lea and when well beyond looked back to see what manner of a place they had been through. In going against the wind at this point many acted as if they had completely lost their breath, as they reeled into doorways and panted. On the other hand to sail before the wind took the dignity out of most persons and they broke into a run under the power pushing them.

The police have reports of various damage from the blow. Wednesday night about 11:45 C. A. Easterbrooks's sign at his Broadway market separated from its moorings and the police secured it. This morning complaint was made to Officer Ring about shingles from the Lead Works flying around too "promiscuous like," but the officer had no fastenings to hold them. They were not the only shingles that flew; one man reports his roof almost denuded, and all sorts of tarred paper from roofs may be seen on the street. Two chimneys are reported blown over on Newport avenue, and there have been anxious looks cast at a thin chimney on the Heath building on Thames street.

For a little short of half a mile Broadway was a veritable brook in the centre Wednesday evening, the surface water of Middletown washing the Newport highway and of course growing in volume and damage as it dashed down the incline from the Mile Corner to Fowler avenue. Sand and gravel covered the car tracks, particularly the up rails and gave some trouble. At the switch at the corner the gravel filled in so that it was with great difficulty that it was possible to work it, the crews were drenched in clearing it and the cars lost time on every trip. It will cost the companies considerable money to make good the surfacing to the roadway where it was washed.

At Fowler avenue, where catch basins are located, the sewer refused to take the water and a big pond was formed. This and Greene's pond kept the granolithic sidewalk in front of the Greene estate for a distance of a hundred feet submerged and luckless was the person who tried to walk out or in Broadway past this low spot without rubber boots. More was heard about the need of placing an elevated way over this sidewalk for the wet seasons, as many must use the sidewalk and cannot always resort to the cars to pass over this bad place.

The chimney on the Leddy building on Thames street, just south of the Eagle House, went by the board this morning and the wreckage fell into the yard of the Chinese laundryman on Duke street, where there was a narrow escape from considerable damage.

In the streets there are a few wrecks of umbrellas, the result of trying to make use of these frail objects in the storm Wednesday night.

The Mall is strewn with branches and big limbs from the trees, and they are so plentiful that a number of children found it profitable to bring out their carts and collect firewood.

What is reported to be tug Mary Scully has come in from outside and proceeded up the river with one barge, having lost two, it is reported, off Point Judith.

This afternoon the old launch Billow, which formerly ran on the Torpedo Station ferry was put in commission and made the short run across the channel to Long wharf. As the shops were shut down there were not the usual large number of civilian employes to be transported.

A tree on Love Lane has been blown over, but not through any insecurity below, for there is enough frost in the ground to hold the roots of any tree securely.

All electric wire service is and has been subjected to interruption, though no serious damage has been reported. Wires are crossed and some have

WET ENOUGH FOR SAILORS.

So the Newport Yachtsmen Found It Outside, But Pleasant Indoors.

Annual Dinner of the Club a Success, in Spite of Absence of Chief Speaker.

There was no question but the weather Wednesday evening was sufficiently wet to satisfy any yachtsman; the only fault that could be found was that it was not salt enough. However, the attendance at the annual dinner of the Newport Yacht Club did not seem to lack good eaters because it was a little wet and a little blowy outside. Something like 100 were gathered in the dining room of the Perry House by eight bells, after a preliminary survey in the lobby for introductions and handshakes and the exchange of nautical lore, from seven bells out. The dining room was decorated with yacht flags and signals and looked even more cheerful than usual, in comparison with the tough weather outside.

The menu looks good in print and the eaters all agree that Messrs. Dwyer & Purcell surpassed themselves by the excellence of the dinner. It was from first to last more than satisfying and all had a word of praise for the dinner and the service to add to the things nautical and otherwise which were in order during and after the dinner. The menu was as follows:

Martini Cocktail.
Native Oysters on Half-Shell.
Radishes. Celery in Branche.
Queen Olives. Pickles.
Consomme de Volaille Royal.
Filet of Chicken Halibut, Joinville.
Cucumbers au Paprika.
Braised Beef Tenderloin, Champignons.
Roast Milk-Fed Chicken, French Filling.
Apple Sauce.
Bermuda Potatoes Chateau.
String Beans au Beure.
Newport Yacht Club Salad.
Assorted Cake. Neapolitan Ice Cream.
Cheese and Toasted Bents.
Nuts and Raisins.
Coffee.
Beer. Cigars. Cigarettes.

Commodore Caswell had hoped to have Mr. Thomas Fleming Day of The Rudder as his guest and as the principal speaker of the evening. This was a treat not to be missed, for Mr. Day is the most sought-for speaker in the small boat line, of which he has made a specialty and in which he showed his confidence by going across in the Sea Bird. He was, however, unable to attend on account of illness. Rear Commodore Streeter of the Rhode Island Yacht Club, who was scheduled to be present, was kept at home by a dislocated knee, and Rear Commodore John S. Coggeshall of the Newport Club was unavoidably absent, because the Bermuda steamer, on which he was enjoying what part of this storm came to him, was so far from Newport. There were, however, enough members present to make the dinner a complete success and among those from away were Commodore Bartels of the Edgewood Yacht Club and A. B. Tingley of the Barrington Yacht Club.

The Newport Mandolin Orchestra furnished music during the dinner and between the speeches and also at the club house, where the real sports assembled after the dinner to finish out a night well begun.

Commodore Caswell had at his table Commodore Bartels, ex-Commodores Scannevin and Arnold, Secretary Cozzens, Treasurer Austin and Mr. MacLeod.

The dinner proper having been paid every respect, Commodore Caswell complimented the entertainment committee, of which Herman D. Frasch was chairman, on the excellence of the arrangements and the satisfactory dinner. When he moved that the thanks of the club be given the committee for the success of its efforts his suggestion met with universal commendation.

After explaining the absence of some who were expected and who had sent regrets Commodore Caswell introduced Commodore Bartels of the Edgewood Yacht Club, who spoke of the uniform kindness shown to visiting yachtsmen by the Newport club and extended an invitation to all to visit his club, that the members might return some of the courtesies received.

Treasurer Austin gave an account of the financial condition of the club, which proved to be satisfactory. He also spoke of the social work of the past four years, which has made the club such a favorite place when the boats are in winter quarters.

Ex-Commodore Arnold, the new president of the Narragansett Bay Yacht Racing Association, spoke of the work of the Association in the past and its growth in size and importance in the racing along the coast. He referred to his intention to make more of the motor boat racing the coming season than has hitherto been done, in order to bring more of the owners into the work of racing.

Mr. William MacLeod spoke of having a class of small one-design boats to stimulate interest in small-boat sailing. This is a subject which has frequently been discussed and in which a start was made last year by Mr. Coggeshall, which the speaker hoped would be supplemented by other members of the club.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.

W. A. Copeland, a man about 35 years old, attempted suicide at his father's residence on Thames street Wednesday evening by taking oxalic acid. He had been rather despondent since the death of his mother, and after supper went to his room, wrote a letter to his wife, saying he was tired of living and proposed to take his life. He then apparently poured some of the acid from a phial into a glass and drank the liquid. He became very sick and attracted the attention of others in the family, who went to his relief. A doctor was called and applied the usual antidote, and with the assistance of another worked on the man until he could be taken to the hospital. It is believed that the prompt discovery of his attempt and and quick work by the physicians will prevent a fatal ending of his attempt at suicide.

DEATH OF "AUNT MARGARET" McCARTY.

Miss Margaret McCarty, sister of the late Mrs. Catherine Sully, died at her home on Houston avenue at an early hour Wednesday night, in the seventy-fifth year of her age. She was a cripple from childhood, but despite her affliction was an estimable woman, with a bright and cheerful disposition. Loved by all who knew her, she was known as "Aunt Margaret," few knowing her other name. She came to this country from County Cork Ireland, 56 years ago and has since made her home with her sister, Mrs. Sully, and since the latter's death with her niece. A member of St. Mary's Church until the division of the parish, she then became a member of St. Augustin's. She is survived, by a sister, Mrs. John Walsh of South Weymouth, Mass., two nieces, Mrs. William Spicer and Mrs. Mary Harrington of this city, and two nephews, Mr. Paul Sully of New York and Mr. M. J. Sully of Cambridge, Mass.

A REAL SEND-OFF.

Despite the storm, the blow and the cold Janitor James W. Bourdley of the New York dock was given a great send-off by his fellow-workers on the dock when he left this morning on the 10 o'clock trip of the General to take a short vacation and visit his brother at Narragansett Pier. The vigor of the weather called for something out of the ordinary, and as every one agreed that Jim should be given a real send-off on this his first vacation they had recourse to beans instead of rice, to help make it seem like the real thing. He finally left, to the tooting of his own whistle.

ANNEXATION OF TRIPOLI.

Proclaimed in Royal Decree at Re-Opening of Chamber of Deputies.

ROME, Feb. 22.—The Italian Chamber of Deputies re-opened today with a large attendance, both of deputies and spectators, the latter including Thomas J. O'Brien, United States ambassador to Italy in the diplomatic tribune. Seated among the public was also seen a lawyer named Salem from Salonika, who is supposed to be in Rome as the representative of the Young Turks, in order to ascertain the real situation in Italy and to find out in an unofficial way on what terms peace between Turkey and Italy might be concluded.

When Giuseppe Marcora, the speaker of the Chamber of Deputies in a spirited speech expressed the greetings of the deputies to the Italian soldiers and sailors, who are fighting in Tripoli, there was a hurricane of applause in which the public joined heartily, everybody standing up.

Pietro Lacava, a former minister, followed the speaker. He addressed the deputies as the "father of the chamber" and his words caused a fresh outburst of enthusiasm among the public. The manifestation reached its greatest height when Giovanni Gilitti, the premier, presented the royal decree proclaiming the annexation of Tripoli and asking the house to transform it into law.

FRANCE STABLE AND STRONG.

Unfounded Belief That Republic is In State of Decadence and Many Signs of New Renaissance.

[Paris letter to Washington Star.]

It is a common belief abroad—in some countries, at least—that France is in a state of decadence. Political life is a maze of intrigue, finance is corrupt, commerce suffers from dry rot; scandals, sabotage, strikes, riots, syndicalism, Apachism, anti-patriotism, anarchy and other demoralizing forces are claimed to be destroying the vitality of the people, and sealing the doom of France as a great nation. Such is the gloomy picture of France which certain foreigners paint. It is a picture that is far from the truth.

Let there be no mistake about it; France was never more alive since it has been a republic, never more active intellectually, never more united in face of danger or more confident of its strength. There is a new French renaissance. To be sure there are scandals which are ruthlessly exposed; there are public men, not wholly good, whose reputations are torn to pieces; there are sabotage, syndicalism and other evidences of labor unrest; there are putrid plays and there are demoralizing literature and other signs of degeneracy. The trial of international finance is sometimes evident in politics, and it cannot conceal its sordid tracks. There are varieties of revolutionary socialism and anarchy, but these things seem more terrible than they really are. France has absolute freedom of the press; scandals are unearthed, which, in other countries would be hidden. The failings of politicians are magnified.

In France the editor of today may be the minister of tomorrow. Journalism is permanently allied to literature on the one hand and to personal politics on the other. Frankness and outspokenness of discussion go to extremes and create wrong impressions abroad. That France is sound at the core, that its institutions are stable and that it is passing through a period of extraordinary intellectual activity is evident to any close observer.

There are many signs in France of the new renaissance. It is producing new philosophers, who are cosmopolitan in their ideas. And it gives examples of amazing industry. Witness M. Rolland's portentous work on John Christopher, which has already run to many books and several volumes and is not nearly finished. It is a story and a study which is apparently intended to lay bare some of the weaknesses of French civilization and strengthen the ties of international sympathy. Such a work is possible only in France, where book production is cheaper than in any other country. France has the cheapest new books, just as, through a system of subscription by post, it has the cheapest newspapers.

Another healthy sign of the times is the increase in popular universities, the growth of the conference and the literary pilgrimage. Young men are taking more and more to field sports, and quite a respectable corner of the daily press is now required to record the results of football matches, cross-country running, hockey, etc. And the progress has not been confined to the men. The women of France, although they do not seek the vote, demand freedom for professional advancement. The feminist movement has made great progress in recent years, and the women have conquered positions in the professional world still closed to them in many other parts of the world.

There are, it must be admitted, demoralizing social influences at work in France; ~~many week points in~~ administrative and in parliamentary life, perhaps some sordid associations between the press and the government. For many years the republic had to be watchful of enemies within her gates. She had the supreme difficulty of reconciling a democratic form of government with militarism. She has not been able to break down the centralization which is a legacy from Napoleonic days. A great conscript army means an element of autocracy which is incompatible with real democracy. But we are comparing France now with what she has been at any time under the republic, and the result is that she was never so virile, never so strong, or so progressive. The French people, politically, are not so unstable or so volatile as they are represented to be. During the critical times of last autumn France maintained a calm, a dignity and a reserve which was an example to her neighbors.

INDIAN WIVES POPULAR.

[Spokane Spokesman Review.]

Since it was noised around that there were scores of dusky Indian heiresses that awaited white husbands on near-by reservations the Spokane agency has been besieged by love-smitten swains, and Captain John McA. Webster has informed all that he is not running a matrimonial bureau and turned a bashful German laddie away almost harshly when he sought a buxom red lassie.

"Of course, I am always ready to administer the Indian affairs to the best of my ability, but I certainly do not wish to usurp the duties of Cupid," said Captain Webster. "There are many of our Indian girls happily married to whites, but if a man wishes an Indian girl and her homestead he need not expect us to aid him in his suit."

The young German blushed as he approached Captain Webster's desk again. "Have any of these Indians got good lands?" ventured the nonplussed suitor.

He was told that there was good land in the hands of the Indians and that some of it might be purchased or leased from families where several children had received allotments.

"I just thought if there were any Indian girls that would marry a nice fellow I would not mind, if we had a little something to get a start," he continued. "If there is any way to get one of the girls I think that it would be all right and I would try to make her happy."

"Would one of those Indian girls think of marrying a white man who is a gentleman in every respect?" pleaded a swain from California in a recent letter to Captain Webster. "I prefer a halfbreed, but if she is good-looking I think that I would be willing to take a chance at marrying a fullblood."

More than a dozen letters have been received from bachelors in the various states since the report was circulated that the Indian girls were wealthy and would welcome white suitors. Several have appeared in person.

WASHINGTON AS A MODEL.

Politicians Quote Reference to Third Term in Farewell Address.

Not so Keen to Heed Warning Against Entangling Foreign Alliances —Aid to Congressmen.

[Washington correspondence of The News.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—Washington's farewell address is being given more emphasis than usual this year by those who have had occasion to use it in celebrating the birth of the Father of His Country. Every year the address is read in the Senate, and even the House has occasionally had a reference to the great truths which Washington asserted in that famous document.

This year the remark about a third term is being read with great unction by those who think they see the rough rider in the distance making for the White House for his third term, but by some construed to be only a "second elective term." Strong emphasis has been laid upon what the immortal George had to say about only two terms for any President. We are going to hear more instead of less about the third term during the next few months.

It is too bad that those who make Washington the model do not follow him in other matters. "Avoid entangling foreign alliances," warned George Washington, yet we have more complications with foreign nations than ever before, and we are constantly mixing ourselves up still further.

"Why don't you get into the western game?" was a question Chamberlain, the famous British statesman, once asked Tom Reed.

"That is what we most want to avoid," replied Reed, "but the Spanish war, bringing us the Philippines, put us 'into the eastern game' to remain as long as the islands are a part of this country and under our control and perhaps as long as the republic lasts."

Congressman Fitzgerald claims to be the most distinguished Democrat in the country. He says that he has risen to be chairman of one of the great committees in Congress and has not been mentioned either for President or Vice President. Any Democrat of any prominence who in these days escapes mention for the Presidency is really distinguished.

Billy Mason, once a Congressman and then a Senator from Illinois, is coming back to the House on his way back to the Senate when the Lorimer case is settled. They joked Billy about thinking the Lorimer case would never end, but he prefers to wait for Lorimer's seat rather than take any chances on Shelby Cullom's retirement. Cullom has often said that there are graveyards out in Illinois full of politicians who have been waiting for his seat.

If any one should ask who is the most progressive Senator in Congress Newlands of Nevada would come very near getting the most votes, but in one thing he does not progress. He has not acquired the automobile habit. He drives from his country home to the Capitol in an open carriage, behind a handsome pair of horses.

Let it be said to the credit of the Senator from Mississippi, John Sharp Williams, that the quality of his wit is soothing rather than caustic in his references to the Civil war. In supporting his proposition to place a monument to Confederates in the Vicksburg national park Mr. Williams said in his inimitable drawl:

"I served in the 'infantry' in arms. I was not 11 years old until after Johnston's surrender. I have no doubt that if I had been born in time there might have been a different result. The Union might have been dismembered and African slavery perpetuated upon the American continent. As Brigadier Girard said in writing his memoirs, 'It is a curious coincidence that Emperor Napoleon never lost a battle when I was present and fighting.'"

The signal corps of the army has long been experimenting with the problem of equipping aeroplanes with wireless telegraph outfits light enough to be carried easily and at the same time be serviceable. It is now announced that a successful outfit has been devised with which all the government machines are to be equipped as quickly as possible. Major C. McK. Saltzman has been investigating and testing various schemes for months and is responsible for the perfection of the present apparatus.

Senator Nelson has a proposition providing for a bureau as an adjunct to the Congressional library, which shall be an aid to Congressmen in preparing legislation, gathering information, finding references and generally be a bureau of information of all sorts for members of the Senate and House. He may create a little talk with the scheme, but it is not likely to be adopted.

LOCAL CHURCH BROTHERHOODS.

At least three church brotherhoods are in process of formation in Newport, two at the First Presbyterian and one at Trinity Church. At the former an organization of men to be known as the Presbyterian Brotherhood has just been formed and will have its first social session on the last Thursday of the month. Its meetings will be held on the first Wednesday and the last Thursday of the month. A similar organization for the boys of the church is being formed and will have a meeting a week from Thursday to elect officers.

At Trinity it has been decided to establish a branch of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew and application has already been made for a charter.

MILFORD HAS BIG FIRE.

Loss on the Washington Block Estimated at $20,000.

MILFORD, Mass., Feb. 22.—An early morning blaze today caused a loss of $20,000 in the Washington block, a four-story brick structure in the business section. The fire started from an unknown cause, which was confined to the upper floors of the building occupied by Valancia Council Knights of Columbus tenants and offices and stores in the lower part of the block suffered from water damage.

SHETLANDERS' TAME GULLS.

[Fruit Magazine.]

There are many small villages in the world that have only one street, but Lerwick, in Shetland, besides having only a single street, possesses only one tree, and it is not a very tall one either. There are no land birds there, not even a sparrow, but the seagulls are plentiful. The inhabitants of Shetland are very proud of their tree and very kind to the gulls, of whom the children make pets. Children who are brought for the first time to see the wonders of one-streeted Lerwick are always shown as a great curiosity "the only tree in Shetland."

The seagulls are the sparrows of Lerwick, and as such they have a greater share in the town's life than the sparrows of London. In the morning you will note that a seagull sits on every chimney top. Seagulls swoop and hover over every roof in town. The air is full of their strange, high plaintive, haunting cries. Every house has its own familiar seagulls and every street its own band of them. But they never mix. The children in each house have a pet name for their own particular gulls, and having called them by those names, they feed them every day.

Each seagull knows what is meant for him. No bird attached to one house ever seeks to eat the food scattered from the house next door. He does not dare to do so. So, all day long, the seagulls hover and call over the roofs of Lerwick. The people of the town, if they come across a little pile of rice laid upon the roadway, step over it with care. They know that it has been placed there for some seagull. And at night the seagulls leave their appointed chimney pots and fly gracefully away to their resting places on the rocks of the Isle of Ness.

INCREASES WEIGHT QUICKLY.

Simple Way for the Thin and Pale to Be Plump and Rosy.

Samose can hardly be termed a medicine; it is in reality a flesh forming food. Taken before or after meals, it mingles with the food you eat, enables it to assimilate and readily digest, so as to make rich blood and pleasing plumpness.

After Samose has been used a week or ten days a noticeable gain in weight is seen. The sallow complexion will become rosy. The sunken cheeks will have a ruddy glow, the eyes will be bright, the breath sweet and the step elastic.

Hall & Lyon Co.'s customers have told them of the remarkable results following the use of Samose, the great flesh forming food, and they are so thoroughly convinced of its reliability that they are selling it under their personal guarantee to refund the money if it does not do all that is claimed for it. You who are thin and in poor health cannot afford to let another day pass without getting a 50c box of Samose on those terms.

VIOLATED SHERMAN ANTI-TRUST LAW.

National Cash Register Officials Indicted.

Restraint Affected by Bribing Employes of Competitors.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Feb. 22.—Thirty officials and employes of the National Cash Register Company of Dayton, Ohio, were indicted on charges of criminal violation of the Sherman anti-trust law by a special federal grand jury here today.

The Adams Express Company was indicted on 11 counts, charged with having attempted to collect more than established rates. Seven Cincinnati manufacturing firms were also indicted, charged with attempting to secure transportation at lower rates than those established by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The following officers and employes of the National Cash Register Company are named in the indictments:

John A. Patterson, president; A. E. Deeds, vice president; D. C. Edgeter, secretary; W. F. Bippus, treasurer; Robert P. Patterson, A. A. Thomas, Thomas J. Watson, Joseph Rogers, Alexander Harned, F. S. High, M. G. Keith, William Cummings, J. C. Laird, W. C. Howe, C. A. Snyder, Walter Coot, E. H. Epperson, M. J. Jacobs, M. L. Lasler, Jonathan B. Hayward, Alexander W. Sinclair, J. J. Range, Edgar Park, alias C. D. Foote; William H. Muzzy, William P. Flum, Earl B. Wilson.

It is charged that restraint has been in operation for the last 20 years, although the specific charge is confined to the past three years. It is said to have been effected by bribing employes of competitors and transportation telegraph and telephone companies, and injuring the credit of competitors in libeling their machines. The second and third counts charge the defendants with monopolizing the cash register business by the same means.

TOO HIGH RATES EXACTED.

Indictment of the Adams Express Company First in a Series.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—The indictment of the Adams Express Company is the first of what probably may be a series of indictments against various express companies for exacting from shippers more than the published rates. No general campaign against express companies has been instituted by the Interstate Commerce Commission but the commissioner proposes, through the Department of Justice, to make examples of some of the companies for violation of the law. During the recent investigation of express companies Commissioner Lane said that investigation had developed 3,000 instances of over charging in a single day.

WILL NOT ATTACK ROOSEVELT.

Taft to Reply to the Colonel's Speech Made in Columbus.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—President Taft will reply to Colonel Theodore Roosevelt's Columbus speech. Although the President will make no direct attack on Mr. Roosevelt and although administration officials refuse to discuss his Columbus speech, it became known today that the President would answer and present a clear-cut issue between his political creed and that of his predecessor. Mr. Taft's answer will not be made all in one speech, but between now and the last of March he has many speaking engagements that will be utilized for this purpose.

The President today extended his forthcoming trip to Chicago. He will stop in Toledo and speak to the Chamber of Commerce there the night of March 8. In Toledo he will probably make the first speech of a series that will reply to Mr. Roosevelt. President Taft, it was said today, felt that Roosevelt had at last given him an opportunity to make his position clear without indulging in any personal attack. The President has engagements in Ohio, New York, Chicago and New England and it is possible others will be made for him.

ROOSEVELT IN NEW YORK.

Colonel Said His Speech in Columbus Was Good, Sound Doctrine.

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—Theodore Roosevelt returned to New York shortly after noon today from his trip to Ohio. His train was more than three hours late.

"How did they treat you in Ohio?" he was asked.

"Bully," said the colonel. "I had a first class time."

"Your Columbus speech has aroused a good deal of comment," was suggested to him.

"Good, sound doctrine," he replied.

Colonel Roosevelt went from the station to the home of his cousin, J. W. Roosevelt, in Manhattan, where he will spend the day. He said that he would see no one except his family.

OF FREQUENT OCCURRENCE.

Latest Earth Slide at Culebra Cut Amounts to Little.

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—"The earth slides reported to have occurred at Culebra cut are of no special importance or consequence," declared Colonel Goethals, chief engineer of the Panama canal, just before sailing today on the President Grant for Hamburg. "These slides are of frequent occurence," he added. "We have planned for them. I don't regard the latest as one amounting to a great deal. In fact, I'm rather sorry you bothered me by telling me about it."

MOST MILLS SHUT DOWN FOR HOLIDAY.

Men and Religion Forward Movement Planned.

No Decision Regarding New Proceedings for Release of Leaders.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Feb. 22.—Two of the principal mills of the city were in operation today, the others shutting down for the holiday. The mills which gave those operatives who desired to work an opportunity to do so were the Uswoco plant of the United States Worsted Company and the Pemberton mills.

Although there were numbers of operatives going to the mills this morning the Industrial Workers' pickets were out in force at the usual time. No disturbances were reported to the authorities.

In connection with the Men and Religion Forward Movement, which is to open here February 28, Dean Webster, chairman of the executive committee in charge of the campaign, gave out an interview explaining the aims and objects today, in which he made the following reference to the strike:

"So far as the present strike situation is concerned, personally I should say that interference therein would be meddling in somebody else's business. Whatever may be undertaken will be questionably along the more general lines of the education, care of children, and prevention of exploitation and other abuses. The remedy needed will take time to cure. Definite provisions for this subject will be made in the program."

Attorney John P. S. Mahoney, counsel for Joseph J. Ettor, erstwhile strike leader, who has been held without bail on the charge of being an accessory before the fact to the murder of Anna Lopizze, killed in a strike riot January 29, stated this morning that he had not yet given any consideration to the matter of bringing new habeas corpus proceedings to secure the release of Ettor and Arturo Giovannitti, also held for the May term of the grand jury without bail on a similar charge.

Asked if he intended to make such a move later he said that he had reached no decision whatever in the matter.

At the Industrial Workers of the World strike committee meeting this morning W. D. Haywood severely criticised the action of Judge J. J. Mahoney in binding Joseph J. Ettor and Arturo Giovannitti over to the grand jury without bail and announced that he had wired the national secretary of the Socialist party to have all organizers, lecturers and some 40,000 locals to hold indignation meetings and adopt resolutions of protest and to send them to Governor Foss and Judge Mahoney and further to demand an immediate investigation by Congress of conditions here. "I am sure that then the state and county and city authorities will think about their Russianized actions here in Lawrence," he concluded.

Five strikers' children and three women, who planned to start for Bridgeport, Conn., at 10 o'clock this afternoon, were intercepted at the North station by the police and taken to the police station. They were sent to police headquarters in the patrol wagon.

After a talk with the police the parents of the children decided to take their little ones home again. They were Armenians and Portuguese and resided in the Pleasant Valley district of Methuen. City Marshal Sullivan issued a statement that no more strikers' children will be permitted to leave the city or be exploited in any way.

FIGHTING IN WEI HAI WEI.

Natives Unable to Offer Prolonged Resistance to Republican Troops.

WEI HAI WEI, China, Feb. 22.—Fighting has been resumed in the territory of Wei Hai Wei between the republicans and the natives. The latter do not believe the report of the abdication of the throne by the Manchu dynasty. A force of republicans with two Maxim guns is now marching through the disturbed area suppressing the opposition of the inhabitants. The natives are very poorly armed and will not be able to offer a prolonged resistance to the well equipped republican troops.

TO CHECK THE CANTONESE.

Kang Yu Wei Goes to Manchuria to Organize Hakkas Tribe.

LONDON, Feb. 22.—Kang Yu Wei, who was the leader of the reform movement in China in 1898, and grand head of the Empire Reform Association, is proceeding to the south of Manchuria with the object of organizing the Hakkas tribe, in order to check the advance of the Cantonese republicans, according to a news agency despatch received today from Tien Tsin.

Kang Yu Wei, who had declared against the republican regime under Yuan Shi Kai, hopes by rousing the Hakkas tribe to assist in the restoration of a constitutional monarchy and he has the support of the Manchurian viceroy general, Chao Erh Hsun. An agitation with a similar purpose is also being fomented in other parts of Manchuria by Princes Kung and Yu Lang.

PRISON EXPENSES DEDUCTED.

Wife of Chief Yeoman to Receive a Part of His Month's Salary.

VALLEJO, Cal., Feb. 22.—For the first time in the history of the Mare Island navy yard the officer in command has been ordered by the Navy Department to pay to the wife of a man serving a prison sentence the amount of the man's salary less the prison expenses. The man in question is Chief Yeoman Hellpin, serving a three years' sentence for misappropriation of government money while attached to receiving hospital ship Independence. His salary is $70 a month and prison expenses will approximate $10 a month. The sentence imposed on Hellpin provides that he be dishonorably discharged from the navy at the end of three years.

broken, but no poles are reported to have been blown over.

Officer Coggeshall reports that what appeared to be glass from a skylight on the Coggeshall building blew up this morning and was shattered against a big pole. No one was hurt. It was noticed that there were many particles of glass along Thames street, evidence of panes which failed to stand the blow, but no one was reported as injured.

Some bad places in the roads were reported by the police, the result of the heavy rain and the rapid disappearance of the ice, together with the heavy frost in the ground. There will be more such reports.

Many a flag will not be taken down at sunset tonight. Some were not put up this morning, and some of those which were put up were soon taken in again. Some which are out do not look as if there would be much of them left to take in.

It was really as well that it is a holiday. The wind is so strong that it would be difficult to do business and as no one feels inclined to work most people are off the streets and out of possible danger from the blow.

BRISTOL SEES FIERCEST GALE.

Colt Memorial High School and Other Buildings Damaged.

BRISTOL, Feb. 22.—The fiercest gale that can be recalled swept the Narragansett bay shore towns today, holding all shipping at a standstill, flooding cellars where the tide has never reached before, and creating considerable damage to buildings in the towns of Bristol, Warren and Barrington. A gale of 80 miles prevailed, driving the water in many places across the roads which run along the shore, making them almost impassable and stirring up the bottom of the bay so that the water took on the appearance of coffee.

In Bristol $5,000 damage was done at the Colt Memorial High School, a $250,000 building presented to the town by Colonel S. P. Colt, and a large number of residences suffered from having their chimneys blown down, skylights torn off, etc. many of the small craft were torn from their moorings and piled up on the shore.

RELATIONS WITH PERSIA CEASE.

Shuster Greeted by General Consul Topakyan in New York.

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—W. Morgan Shuster, erstwhile treasurer general of Persia, who was the storm centre of a controversy between Persia and Russia, arrived today. He was accompanied by his family.

H. H. Topakyan, consul general of Persia in New York accompanied by his body guard, Captain Varton, greeted Mr. Shuster, not as an American but as a Persian official. The visit Mr. Topakyan paid Mr. Shuster is full of significance from a Persian point of view. After the consul general had welcomed Mr. Shuster back to American soil the responsibility of Persia for his safety ceased. Until he had been so welcomed the government of Persia considered itself fully responsible for him. Mr. Topakyan will now cable back to his government the safe arrival and the relations of Mr. Shuster and Persia will have ceased.

FIRST NEW BAND REHEARSAL.

Large Number of Musicians Present and Much Enthusiasm Manifest.

Evident Disposition to Subordinate Personal Interests to the Success of the Project.

With the skies pouring water and the streets afloat more than half the men invited to join the new concert band were present Wednesday evening for the first gathering of the musicians. When the inauspicious weather conditions are taken into account it is considered that the attendance was promising for the permanent formation of the proposed band.

After an hour's practice a rest was taken and Chairman A. Livingston Mason, who at the beginning made brief remarks to the effect that in preparing for the meeting it had been necessary to make an arbitrary assignment of instrumentation to provide for a harmonious balance, stated that it was not proposed to form the band at that time. It was thought to be well to have a number of similar rehearsals before the formation is effected. He asked if those present were sufficiently interested to go on with the plan. There was a unanimous "Yes" and after the rehearsal there was an enthusiastic questioning of the committee as to when the next might be expected.

Bandmaster Wood of the Training Station band was the leader for the evening and may be for one or two more times. At the beginning he assigned the musicians to their various parts for the evening. Naturally, with such an aggregation from various bands, some of whom are retired veterans of the regular service and others of comparatively brief experience, men were called upon to play second parts when perhaps they had hoped to be soloists. There was no evidence that any felt nettled because they were not the big show, and plenty of indication that acknowledged good musicians were disposed to take whatever was assigned them, in the belief that some one must take the parts for the sake of securing a harmonious whole in the instrumentation. There were men present and playing who have won enviable reputations in the past and who has been a good bandsman but has not owned an instrument for years declared his intention to provide himself with an instrument at once. While many of the men have not done any band work for months, and in cases a year, a few have of late been practicing for this occasion.

Not all the available musicians of the city have signified their intention of joining the new band, for the reason that some know that in such an organization, where the aim is so high, it will be impossible for them to choose their parts. In some cases, too, the appeal for the love of music does not seem to attract them, and they say frankly that they are in music for the money and desire the assurance that they are to be money winners before they join. Mr. Mason stated during the evening that it had come to his ears that a report had been started that it was the intention of this new movement to break up all existing musical organizations. This he denied, but said that it was the purpose to have one local organization which would be capable of rendering really good music.

The first music distributed was that of the "Second Connecticut March," not the least difficult composition ever written but one of the popular marches which has lasted [illegible] years and is familiar to every bandsman. It was not played perfectly, but the result was surprising to both the leader and the musicians. It was a scrub team, one might say, in its first scrimmage, and that they were able to play together at all opened their eyes. More familiar marches were tried, constant improvement being shown, and then more difficult selections were tried.

As intimated, the 30 men who attended the meeting were highly enthusiastic at the close and the next meeting is expected to bring out many if not all of those who were missed. A band of 50 pieces, which the new organization now looks like, will be larger than Newport is accustomed to see and larger than most occasions will warrant, but there are some prospective members who are not joining for the pay they expect to derive, and yet by having such a large organization of capable musicians it will be possible to engage any size of band desired for almost any purpose. For a parade, in fact it might be possible to put in two bands, either of which would be as large as the ordinary. This part perhaps is not regarded as the main feature, the idea seemingly being to have an organization which can and will if it appears in public play good music, and play it well.

JOHN BURROUGHS ENDORSES MR. AVIS.

Mr. Edward Avis, who is to give the illustrated lecture, "An Evening in Birdland," for the benefit of the Humane Research Club, has received the following letter from John Burroughs, the well known naturalist:

"Dear Sir: I am glad to be able to say to you that I enjoyed your imitations of the songs of many of our birds (in some cases reproductions would be a better word) very much. Some of them I have never before heard so well rendered by human organs. The song of the robin, of the field sparrow, of the meadow lark, of the wood thrush, of the chewink, and of several others, were especially accurate. In fact, all were excellent except that of the bobolink, and this bird neither man nor bird can imitate."

"With all good wishes I am,

"Very sincerely yours,

"John Burroughs."

ADMIRAL MURDOCK'S COURAGE.

Maintains Rights of Foreign Vessels Imperilled in Revolution.

Defies Orders of Chinese Rebels for Shipping to Vacate International Anchorage.

How near the guns of the American warships came to roaring in defense of foreign shipping in Chinese waters during the revolution became known for the first time when it was learned that Rear Admiral Joseph B. Murdock, commanding the Asiatic squadron, of all the foreign naval commanders who were at the scene, asserted and maintained the right of the vessels of the world to remain unmolested. The part he played in a crisis which might have become serious is told in an official report to the Navy Department.

The scene of the incident, which bears a striking resemblance to the famous episode in Rio Janeiro harbor two decades ago, when Admiral Benham defied the Brazilian rebels, was at Shanghai in the Yang-Tse. The revolutionists were in practical possession of the city of Shanghai and had ordered all foreign shipping to vacate the international anchorage at Wu Sung. With one exception, the foreigners acceded to the demands. Admiral Murdock refused and told messengers who brought the notice that he would not tolerate any unnecessary interference with American shipping, even to the extent of removing it from the line of fire of the shore forts.

At that moment fleet collier Abarenda steamed up, and an armed junk bore down upon her to board her. The captain of the Abarenda, a civilian, lined up his civilian crew, armed them with rifles and with his officers wearing revolvers in their belts, all stood ready to repel the boarding party. At that the junk sheered off, put about and allowed the Abarenda to proceed to her own anchorage.

Rear Admiral Murdock is well known here, having been several years a member of the staff at the Naval War College.

The selection by Edward Elgar, although simple in character, is as ultra-religious as some of his orchestral symphonies are ultra-modern. His sacred works open up a new and refreshing field in religious music.

REGULATIONS FOR MOTOR BOATS.

Regulations for the 150,000 motor boats in the United States waters have been issued by the Department of Commerce and Labor. They make no changes in the rules governing lights, whistles, bells and sound signals, and only slight revisions in those pertaining to the life preservers, these being compulsory for motor boats which carry passengers for hire. The regulations for the prevention of fire also remain the same as provided in the previous law.

TWO BATTLESHIPS CALLED FOR.

The building of two first-class battleships to cost $6,000,000 each, exclusive of armor and armament, with an immediate appropriation of $10,000,000 toward their completion, is proposed in a bill introduced by Representative Foss of Illinois, Republican. The House Democrats in caucus recently voted against any battleship appropriation, but many Democrats are claimed to have changed their views and one battleship may be provided for. The naval affairs committee will consider the Foss bill in a few days.

TRAINING STATION ENTERTAINMENTS.

During the early part of the winter it seemed easy to put on entertainments at the Training Station. Now it would appear to be difficult, though a program of promise has been prepared for the observance of Washington's birthday. There were at the Station a few months ago an exceptionable number of capable young men who could appear on the stage and give a good account of themselves. Today the number is much less, and the changes have been taking place so that no sooner has a man for a part been found than orders have been issued transferring him to another station.

Even this has not been the whole trouble, while in times past there has been plenty of money available for an entertainment fund, being the balance from the mess account, there now seems to be a shortage in the funds and it is necessary to put on an entertainment for the amusement of hundreds of boys at an expenditure of a few dollars. Even the appropriation for prizes for the athletic events has been cut down.

WRESTLING AT THE ARMY AND NAVY.

Three interesting wrestling bouts took place in the Army and Navy Young Men's Christian Association gymnasium Wednesday evening, under the direction of Seaman Joe Gordon, light-weight champion of the navy. Twelve had been planned, but the storm prevented the other contestants from coming to the city.

The first was between Frank A. Adams and T. E. Hayes and was won by Adams in five minutes and 29 seconds, after a fast contest. The second, between J. E. Murdock and F. T. Rice was sharply contested, Murdock securing the decision after 14 minutes and 46 seconds, although he did not put his opponent's shoulders on the mat, Rice gave up on a scissors body hold.

Gordon then gave a demonstration of the various holds and breaks, being assisted by Adams, winner of the first bout, and concluded his exhibition with a short bout with Adams.

BEACH ESTIMATE FAIR.

Appraiser Kelly Says There is Much Good Material in the Buildings.

Police Appropriation Running Low—Bids for Collection of Garbage Ordered Advertised.

The Board of Aldermen held the weekly meeting Wednesday evening, Mayor Boyle presiding and Aldermen Albro, Hughes, Leddy and McLeish present. The report of the appraisers on the beach buildings was received and the board decided that it could take no other action than to submit the report to the Representative Council. The appraiser appointed by the city, John J. Kelly, was present and spoke, saying that in his opinion it was a fair award for what is on the beach.

The weekly pay rolls were approved for the following sums: Streets and highways, $566.58; police, $880.26; fire department, $511.24; city officers, $252.35; firemen in theatres, $30. The monthly pay rolls of the school department, amounting to $10,691.91, were also approved.

The application of Jacob Aronson for a pawnbroker's license was laid on the table.

A communication was received from the chief of police, calling attention to the fact that the appropriation made at the beginning of the year was inadequate to meet the expenses of the department, which are now approximately $1,000 a week. When the roll of February 17, payable February 24, has been paid there will remain a balance of but $591.86, from which must be deducted bills of $219.77, leaving on hand only $280.23. The amount appropriated at the beginning of the year was $7,-525.34, but there has been an increase in the force and also in pay, and this was not enough for the time. There will not be enough to pay the roll approved on the twenty fourth and payable March 2, and the chief so notified the board.

Mayor Boyle said he did not believe the police would go on strike, even if their pay was delayed one or two weeks. However, the city clerk could notify the chairman of the Representative Council of the condition of the police finances with a request that the Council be called together to act.

The appraisers of the buildings on the beach made their report, as follows:

"Whereas, John J. Kelly, John D. Johnston and D. G. Swain were severally chosen under the provisions of a certain indenture of lease made and executed the — day of January, A. D. 1902, between the city of Newport, a municipal corporation, and the Easton's Beach Company, a corporation created by law, as three disinterested persons, to determine the fair valuation of the buildings erected by the Easton's Beach Company on the said Easton's beach in the city of Newport, and remaining thereon at the expiration of the renewal of said lease on November 1, 1911.

"We, John J. Kelly, John D. Johnston and D. G. Swain, being three of the said persons, after a full hearing and consideration of said matter do hereby determine the fair valuations of the said buildings to be purchased by the said city of Newport to be $30,201.42.

"Witness our hands this 20th day of February A. D. 1912.

"John J. Kelly,

"John D. Johnston,

"David G. Swain."

When the report had been read Mayor Boyle said he saw nothing for the board to do but to receive the award [illegible] report it to the Representative [illegible]cil. The board has no [illegible] the award, and it calls [illegible] the appropriating power. [illegible] voted to receive the award [illegible] it to the Council.

[illegible] Ezra J. Owens, a night watchman who desired to be a special policeman, was appointed such by the mayor and the appointment was confirmed.

The city clerk called attention to the garbage collection. The Committee of Twenty-Five has recommended an appropriation for collection and the street commissioner desired to have his teams free from this work by April 1, so that he can put them on regular work. There is but one dumping place available, so far as he could learn. Mayor Boyle said he noticed that the street commissioner told the Committee of Twenty-Five that there are places for dumps to be had for the asking.

The city clerk suggested that bids be asked for one, two or three years, with the privilege of terminating the contract at the end of either period. Mr. Hughes said it seemed that a contractor would not care to assemble a plant for doing the work on a one-year contract. Mayor Boyle said the plan of a destructor is under consideration and it may be that the city will wish to terminate the contract early, if one is built. He suggested that bids be asked for one year, with a price for renewal for a further period up to five years. It was agreed that the bidder should understand there is at present but one dump available. The city clerk was directed to advertise for bids for the collection of garbage to be in February 29.

The city solicitor had come in during the discussion and Mayor Boyle showed him the award on the beach and stated what the board had done. The city solicitor suggested that the records of the board show that the report had been received and was told that this had been done.

Mr. Kelly, the appraiser appointed by the city, also came in and was asked about the award. He said he had the detail figures and read them. The exact figures were not caught, as the details do not quite even up with the total for himself and Mr. Johnston, but they give a rough idea of how the two compared. Mr. Kelly's figures were as follows: Beginning at the west end, private section, $3,060; middle section, office, $3,300.86; next or bath-houses, $2,916.52; new or toilet building, $2,427.79; merry-go-round, $1,-376.41; restaurant, $2,600.95; triangle, $1,291.65; east section, $4,281.52; piping, etc., $150; total, $21,449.00.

Mr. Johnston's total was $12,562.71. For the toilet building he allowed $1,-566.29, for the new office $5,918.80, for the merry-go-round $1,583.73, the two being close on this; restaurant $6,-785.37, and all bath houses $24,529.58.

Mr. Kelly said he considered the award a fair one. He met Mr. Johnston in November and two weeks were spent on the beach, examining each building, making measurements and securing the value of the material, including shingles. It had been hoped to have a report ready for the Council before the December election, but it was soon evident that the work was too great to finish in the time available.

When they had their estimates ready Mr. Johnston suggested that a third man be appointed before the estimates were disclosed. He objected to any one in Newport and said any one in the list of master builders of Boston would be acceptable. By correspondence they found that none of those on the list cared to serve and finally they succeeded in securing Mr. Swain from Brockton. He took our estimates and January 10 he looked over the buildings with us. He was delayed in his report by several fire appraisals which he was called to make and each of the appraisers had written him to hurry him with his report. Finally he had the work done with the exception of another examination and some questions which were answered.

The award was made under the conditions of the lease and in his opinion it is a fair one for the city. There is a great mass of material in the buildings, more than any one would suspect without a thorough examination such as the appraisers gave. Then there is the price of stock today. He saw that the Committee of Twenty-Five was surprised at the amount, but if they knew how much material there is in the buildings and what it is worth they would, he felt sure, feel as he did, that the award is fair. The fact that the city proposes to use the buildings made the award larger than it would have been had it been decided to tear them down. Mr. Johnston's original estimate had been $52,000, which was cut for depreciation.

In answer to a question by Mayor Boyle, Mr. Kelly said he could put the details in a written report to make to the board, which would transmit it to the Council, and which could be seen by the Committee of Twenty-Five, and he promised to make such a report so that it would be available at once.

Then there was the matter of compensation for the appraisers. The city would have Mr. Kelly's bill and one half of Mr. Swain's to pay, the Easton's Beach Company paying Mr. Johnston and half of Mr. Swain's bill. These are to be sent in at once.

The city clerk called attention to the watchman at the beach and Mayor Boye said he supposed the city would pay him. His bill is also to come in.

Mayor Boyle asked the status of the Boulevard law suit and the city solicitor said it is planned to have that come up for trial at the March session of the court. The law points have not yet been sent to the supreme court.

In regard to the Water Works suit over the $300 yearly charge for flowing fountains the city solicitor said that was argued before the court December 20 and briefs were submitted, and it was understood that a decision might be looked for inside of four months.

There being no further business the board adjourned.

CECILIE LODGE'S SUPPER AND DANCE.

In Eintracht Hall Wednesday evening the members of Cecilie Lodge had their annual supper, which was largely attended. The hall was decorated with American and German flags and greens. A turkey supper was served, during which piano selections were rendered by Misses Clara Buehler, Dorothy Malzadier, Gertrude Ehrhardt and Mary Brack and vocal duet by Mr. William Hayes and Miss Clara Hayes. After the supper the tables were cleared away for dancing, which continued from 8 to 12 o'clock, music being furnished by members of the lodge. The committee in charge of the supper and entertainment consisted of Miss C. Buehler, Miss Mary Boeglin, Mrs. William Jurgens and Mrs. Charles Weiss.

A CRUCIAL GAME IN THE LEAGUE.

The crucial game in the City Basket Ball League season is between the Algonkins and the St. Joseph's, who are to play for the third time. Thus far both games have been won by the former, after the closest kind of play. The Algonkins have not played since the last game with the Young Men's Christian Association and are in fine condition. St. Joseph's came out of the last game with the Father Mathews in good condition with the exception of Williams, who injured his knee, but is expected to be all right when the whistle blows for the start. If the Algonkins win this game it will give them the championship of the league, but if the St. Joseph's win they will be tied for first place and will have one more game to decide the leaders of the league.

WHO IS MR. REFFLES?

A New Advertising Scheme for Newport, Likely to Cause Much Amusement.

A Thames Street clothing firm, the Talbot Company, has inaugurated a new advertising scheme for Newport, which is calculated to excite considerable interest and merriment. In today's advertisement it announces that a certain character will be in Newport, whose name for the occasion will be "Mr. Reffles." The first person to ascertain the identity of "Mr. Reffles," will be rewarded from the stock of clothing. Of course it is necessary to accost the individual with the proper sentence, and he is not necessarily a stranger, but may be a man of wide acquaintance about town, who has agreed to act the part for the day.

"Mr. Reffles" visited New Bedford recently and was the cause of much fun. Strangers upon their arrival at the railroad station were asked if they were "Mr. Reffles," people in the street cars caught the fever, everybody asked his friends as well as strangers, and altogether "Mr. Reffles" was a much sought individual. Finally some one was successful in striking the right man and received the reward.

The scheme seems to be a good-natured one, half humorous and half serious. It may be a joke to be asked if you are "Mr. Reffles," but it is no joke to receive the award if one hits it right.
